

Contents

Acknowledgements . . . . .	1
List of translated acronyms . . . . .	2
I. Preface . . . . .	4
II. Methodology of the study . . . . .	5
III. Brazil . . . . .	6
Background . . . . .	6
Brazil’s Tree Farming Programs . . . . .	10
Small consumers of wood and the Forest Replacement Associations . . . . .	12
Comparing FRA and other TFP in Four States . . . . .	16
The Brazilian Carbon Market and its Potential for the FRA . . . . .	27
IV. Nicaragua . . . . .	29
Background . . . . .	29
Forest Replacement Associations in Nicaragua . . . . .	33
Forest Replacement Associations Visited . . . . .	40
V. Conclusions . . . . .	51
VI. Recommendations . . . . .	56
Brazil . . . . .	56
Nicaragua . . . . .	56
VIII. References . . . . .	59
Annex 1   Brazil: Site Visit Reports . . . . .	64
Annex 2   List of people interviewed in Brazil and Nicaragua . . . . .	79
Brazil . . . . .	79
Nicaragua . . . . .	81

Sustainable woodfuel Production in Latin America

---

Annex 3   List of Forest Replacement Associations that are members of the Confederation of Replacement Associations of São Paulo (FARESP) . . . . .	84
--	----